Meet Amanda Ferragamo

From a convent boarding school in England to the pinnacle of Italy's high society and the mountains around Tuscany that she calls home today, one thing has remained constant in Amanda Ferragamo's amazing life - her passion and love for artistic design.

Today Amanda is inspired by the natural world around her - from the colour in a flower to the shape of a leaf or the way a branch catches the light and its movement in the breeze. Ailanto Design is the product of a lifetime of inspiration, decades of passion and love for artistic expression.

Ailanto Design is Amanda Ferragamo's legacy.

The Juggler

'The Juggler' design represents life and in particular perhaps a female life. You notice the lady music conductor at the top of the tree representing the rhythm and music our lives move to. There is the male juggler and the ball is passed from the gentleman like he is the centre of life. We try to keep all of the balls in the air but of course symbolically, one drops to the claw of the tigers, one is balanced on the hand of trapeze artist and one monkey has grabbed it with his tail representing the children. These are the funny and dramatic stories of the unexpected events in our lives.

Pini

The Pini design comes from the famous ancient Umbrella Pine trees of Rome. Originally planted by the Roman Emperors to shade their marching soldiers down the ancient Appia way, they form an integral part of the Roman scenery. The Pini and their very definite shape capture Amanda's imagination as they stand against the evening sky at dusk, like sentinels.

Semi

The 'Semi' design is based on the seeds of the Ailanto or Ailanthus plant which grows wild in Tuscany and flowers in the Spring.

The plants are an exceedingly bright citrus green with dark seeds and the seeds themselves are particularly beautiful with wings.

Sambuco

While out horse riding with a friend, Amanda took special notice of the beautiful black berries that adorn the Elderflower bush; the inspiration for the Sambuco design was born.

Melograno

The Melograno design is inspired by the ancient pomegranate fruit. From one of the terraces in the olive groves, two ancient pomegranate trees are admired. The fruit themselves are comprised of such incredible colours and when they're ready and full in the Autumn, they fall and split exposing the shiny red seeds. Of course in Italy they are considered lucky.
